

ST CROSS COLLEGE
UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Welcome to St Cross College Library.

The library is open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and accessed with your fob. As a reader you are entitled to borrow up to twelve items at a time for a period of four weeks and unreserved books can be renewed up to three times. To borrow books please either use click and collect or our self-issue terminal. Returned books can be deposited in the returns cupboards in the college foyer or library.

Please note the library is a space for silent study, no eating is permitted and liquids need to be kept in a sealed bottle.

All our books and eResources are catalogued on SOLO (Oxford University's library catalogue) Information on using SOLO and accessing the resources available for you is outlined in this helpful Bodleian lib guide

As well as housing a collection of printed books we also have a significant number of online resources, which you will need your Single Sign On \(SSO\) to access. More details about Oxford University wide online resources can be found here

On our web page you will see lists of our new acquisitions, Welfare & Study Skills and Equality & Diversity resources.

To recommend a book (either print or eResource) for the library please email us on librarian@stx.ox.ac.uk

There are printing facilities in the library and WiFi access via Eduroam.

You also have the option to study in the Catherine and Douglas Wigdor Room opposite the library, here you can bring in food and drink and discuss your research with your fellow students. This room is home to the James Currey Collection, a unique resource on African politics, history and literature. This collection is reference only, so please contact us if you wish to consult it.

In the Lange Room you will find our book exchange and comfy reading chairs, the books in here can be borrowed and returned at your discretion and you are welcome to leave books you no longer need.

For a full explanation of using the library and its resources please consult our web page

Across the quad you will find Pusey House Library, predominantly a theology library it welcomes visitors from all disciplines and you can join its Scriptorium during term time.

The Bodleian has put together useful information on the services they provide for taught postgraduates and research postgraduates as well as a handy map of all the Oxford University libraries. You can also check out their iSkills workshops and guides covering a wide range of subjects to aid your studies.

My working hours are Monday, Wednesday and Thursday all day, Tuesday afternoon and Friday morning should you have any questions or need further information.

We look forward to seeing you in the library!
